Geo. Dobson sold the Clydesdale horse Lord Grandon, [1899] to James Snyder of Hartman last week. A mistake was made in the last issue stating that the horse Rubyson was purchased by Mr. P. Johnson. This should have said was purchased by Mr. C. McCurrach of Three Hills.

A fire started at the nuisance ground to burn up some rubbish got away on Wednesday and caused quite a commotion. An alarm was rung in and a large number of people responded. Fire chief Liesemer took hold of matters and after some hours hard work the fire was well confined to where it started.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Moyle and family left on Monday night's train for Paris, Ont., where they will reside in future on account of the ill health of two of their little girls. Mr. and Mrs. Moyle were amongst some of the first settlers in this district, coming here about ten years ago. They will be missed by a large number of friends in the district who hope that their two little children will regain their health and strength in their new home. A large number of their acquaintances were at the depot to bid them farewell.

The meeting of the Knox Church Literary and Debating Society on Tuesday night was not very well attended owing no doubt to so many persons being away for the Easter holidays. The debate was postponed until Friday evening next, April 1st, but Master Corney Hiebert delighted those present with the violin solo "Trauerlied," which was rendered with great skill and feeling. The subject for the debate on Friday night will be "Resolved, that at the present time the building of a Canadian navy is preferable to a cash contribution to the British government." Pres. C. Hiebert, W. Gaddies, W. Nelson, Cons. H. L. Patterson, H. E. Osmond. It is hoped there will be a good attendance at this meeting.

A Savings Account Helps

Opening a Savings Account in the Union Bank makes it easier to save. You get into the habit of depositing more or less regularly, small amounts of money that would otherwise quickly slip away. At the end of the year, with the interest added, there is a substantial balance to your credit—and you have scarcely missed the deposits. A Savings Account in the Union Bank is a reserve which you ought to provide against possible sickness or financial reverses. Why not start one now?

Cheap Lumber

There is quality in lumber, do not forget that. Poor lumber means a cold crude house, difficult to live in, difficult to rent, and difficult to sell. I carry cheap lumber suitable for some purposes, but the kind you want in your house I make a specialty of. My best grades I store in weather proof sheds. Do you ever consider how much your carpenter takes cost you to work up poor lumber. I am not advertising any cheap sale but I sell cheap always. Quick sales and small profits is my motto. Have you seen that shiplap I am selling at $20.00 per M? Have you seen those boards at $18.00 per M? I carry a complete stock of lumber. Anything you want you will find in my yard. No cash deposits required. You get what you see and buy and both quality and satisfaction guaranteed.

If you contemplate building, call and see me. I can figure on that plan and tell you what it will cost any time.

Calgary had a general clean-up day last week, merchants, clerks and even the city commissioners taking off their coats to make their city more beautiful and clean. This is a great idea and would be a good example to follow in our own town. The Mayor should be requested to call a civic holiday for say three hours some afternoon and request all citizens to turn out and help clean up our streets, lanes and waste space in town. No doubt if this was done the people would willingly give the assistance needed as a glance around town will show that the citizens as a general thing take a great interest in their private surroundings and would show the same interest in their public surroundings if given a chance. Ask the Mayor to proclaim a clean-up holiday.

There cannot be much satisfaction in "go in' round and lickin' the editor" when the latter not only makes copy out of the encounter, but pictures himself as the hero as well. The following vivid pen picture is taken from the editorial columns of a journal published in the Western States: There was a blow. Somebody fell. We got up. Turning upon our antagonist we succeeded in winding his arm around our waist, and by a quick manoeuvre threw him on top of us, bringing our back at the same time in contact with the solid bed of the printing press. Then, inserting our nose between his teeth, cleverly entangling his hands in our hair, we had him!

Stabbing Affray

Carl Schangourve, a Finn who stabbed a fellow countryman during a fight on North avenue on Wednesday last, was brought to the city last night and lodged in the barracks by the mounted police, who arrested him at Tronchi Valley, where he is home-staying.

W. F. Goring, the complainant in the case, narrowly escaped death as the wound made by Schangourve missed his jugular vein by a fraction of an inch. The men quarrelled over the possession of a homestead held by Goring in the Tronchi Valley country. Schangourve is being held at the barracks until he is brought before the magistrate for preliminary hearing.

Retail Advertising

"Now the greatest builder of confidence is publicity—advertising. Lack of confidence is usually due to ignorance. Unless you know a man well you haven't confidence in him. Unless you know a business house well you haven't confidence in that house. The greatest foe of ignorance is publicity. The saying that 'publicity corrects all abuses' is a true one. Advertising makes you acquainted with the public. It gives people knowledge of you and your goods, and knowledge is absolutely essential to confidence. Big advertising looks like big sales; it makes people familiar with you, it unconsciously creates confidence. Without a doubt the greatest force today in the interest of confidence—in the interest of credit if you will—is advertising." Commercial.

MALCOLM KIRK

A Tale of Moral Heroism
In Overcoming the WorldBy CHARLES M. SHELTON,
Author of "In His Steps," "Crucifixion of Philip Strong,"
"Robert Hardy's Seven Days."Copyright, 1905, by the Advance Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

Malcolm Kirk spent a Sunday in Chicago, and Faith had the great delight of hearing him preach in the church where she had laid down the evening service that eventful Sunday before. They took tea with the pastor that evening, and the next day Malcolm started back to Concord.

Malcolm Stanley went with him. There was, if the truth must be told, a secret disappointment in the heart of the young Englishman that Faith was not going home too. But the two men said goodly cheerily to Faith and were whirled out into the west, while Faith went back to her work with a brave heart, in spite of a little feeling of homesickness that crept over her at the sight of the two men's figures on the platform of the revolving train.

Her relations with the Fultons were decidedly different now. She was careful not to presume in the least on the change in their thought of her, and when Mrs. Fulton asked her that day if she would not sit down at the table with them she said she preferred not to, which was entirely true. Faith believed that if she was to serve the family as she ought at meal-times she must be ready to do so in the most effective manner. And she knew she could not do so if she ate with the rest. Mrs. Fulton was much relieved at Faith's action in that respect, and she seemed to Faith, however, that when Sunday morning came and Alice asked her to come into the family circle for prayers she ought to go, and should so quietly and unobtrusively.

When evening came, Alice wanted to go to church with her, and Mrs. Fulton did not say anything. The new order of things was unheard of, but a girl whose family friends included men like Francis Hagan and John Hagan was not an ordinary hired girl, and Mrs. Fulton reasoned with herself accordingly.

But before that Sunday came Faith and the artist had gone to see the famous city photographer, who had taken a liking to Faith at the beginning, and she readily agreed to his plan of a trial at the end of the month, and Faith went back to her kitchen quite exultant at the prospect.

"If I could only get $100 or even $5 a week home, I'd be the proudest girl in this city," she said as she prepared the dinner that evening. "And then, in time, perhaps I can have a studio of my own like Miss Varney's. I know I have plenty of artistic ideas, and maybe one or two of them are original."

So she sang light hearted as she worked, everening the world of her loneliness and her trials, for it was not all heaven on earth always even in that well appointed kitchen, and there were many things to fight without and within.

But when the time of her stay with the Fultons was out she parted from them with genuine regret. It is very certain that Mrs. Fulton devoted exceedingly to "the girl who had been at the end of the month, and Faith went back to her kitchen quite exultant at the prospect.

"We will give you $5 a week if you will only stay a month or two, say, say, 'And you can play the piano if you want to,' she added, with a short laugh and a little embarrassment.

"I'm sorry, really sorry, to leave you, Mrs. Fulton. You have been very good to me. But I feel as if the Lord meant me to do something else. Perhaps I may be able to do something to make American girls willing to go out to service."

"If you will, really you have no idea what I have suffered from my help in the last 20 years," sighed Mrs. Fulton.

Roy was inexpressible. He wanted Faith to take up in a 200 apple pies and leave them in the cold storage plant near by, so he could have something to eat between meals.

"Tell you what I'll do," he said a week before Faith's time was up, "if you will take a pie every day and send it over from the studio, I'll give you my kodak. It's new, but I'm tired of it anyhow."

Faith laughed, but declined the offer. "Then I'll give you the kodak any way," said Roy, and he insisted on Faith taking it, and his offer was so pressing that she had not the strength to refuse. At the earliest opportunity she sent him a photograph of a street arching eating a pie, holding it in both hands, and Roy delightedly framed it and hung it up in his own room after his mother had refused to let it adorn the top of the sideboard in the dining room.

But Faith experienced the sincerest regret in parting from Alice. The two girls entered into what proved to be a really genuine friendship. There was not a particle of pride or jealousy in Alice's nature and not the least feeling of social caste. She wanted Faith to show her how a certain finger exercise on the piano was best done and more than once expressed the greatest admiration for Faith's accomplishments. The friendship thus began has lasted to the present moment. Then there began a new life for Faith. She went at last to have found her place in the world. She was best done and more than delighted with her. "That girl," she said to Francis Raleigh, who called at her studio a month after Faith had been there, "has brought more new ideas into my work than all my other assistants. She will make her mark in the profession."

Faith was in the next room and could not help hearing what was said, unknown to the artist. She trembled with pleasure, and when she wrote home that night she gave her mother a glowing account of her work and its hope for future success. It was with the greatest pleasure that she was able to enclose in this same letter $10 which she had saved from her earnings in the studio.

CHAPTER XX.
TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY AT CONRAD.

So the winter quickly passed, and spring melted into summer, and then a growing plan developed in Faith's mind. She had not been able to crowd it out of her "heart thoughts," as she called any ideas that she was able to put on the paper and call up in memory the sound of the prairie chickens out in the cornfields and see the great stretch of sky that was never certain in the sticky city, with its ugly piles of buildings that shut out sun and air, then Faith grew really homesick and one day she resolutely told Miss Varney that she must go home for a little visit.

"I don't blame you my dear. Go out home and breathe some fresh prairie air and photograph some Kansas ideas and come back with them, and we will make our fortune."

"I don't know about getting photographs of Kansas ideas," replied Faith, "but I do know about the prairie air. And I'm going to get some."

So Faith ran out to the Fultons, said good-bye to them, and Francis Raleigh at the same time and started for home that day.

She had written home, telling of her coming and when she reached Conrad there were father and mother and the two boys at the station and little back of that eager group a stalwart, manly figure, Malcolm Stanley, who had come a week suddenly the day before from New Mexico. It is not exactly certain how he knew that Faith was coming home or, indeed, if he knew anything about it, but it is very certain that he was there at that time and that Malcolm and Dorothy had given him a hearty welcome.

It was just in time to help our church celebrate our twenty-fifth anniversary. Malcolm had said to him. His church was planning in a quiet way for such an anniversary, and he pleased him much to think that Faith was to be at home in time and also that Stanley could be with them.

That was a wonderful homecoming for Faith. The experience she had been rehearsed in the family circle, and there never had been so much hearty, pure laughter in the parsonage since it was built. In the frosty evenings they sat around the open fire in the parlor, and even Malcolm shut up his study and joined the group early, taking over matters with Faith and entering into all her new plans with the enthusiasm of a boy. Dorothy smiled often through happy years as she looked at her children and saw them growing up into sturdy, useful men, in her own mind she thanked the Great Father continually for such treasures, worth more to her and her husband than all the gold and silver in the world.

"I want the boys to go to Phillips academy next fall," Faith said, with an air of one possessed of untold wealth, "but that's what father's grumpy, and it will be a fine thing for them to follow him there."

"Splendid!" exclaimed Malcolm, "I've always dreamed it would be so." "Art is long," continued Faith, "but I'm sure I can win some of the prizes for the best photographic ideas offered by the academy. If the boys had $100 apiece they could enter the school and earn their own way for the most part, couldn't they, father?"

"Of course they could," replied Malcolm, and he told of some of his own experiences as a boy in academy and college life.

"It seems to me, Mr. Kirk, that you have done a little of everything in your lifetime," said Malcolm Stanley, who sat in the family circle and some how seemed quite the one of them.

"Everything except looking out for himself," said Faith quietly.

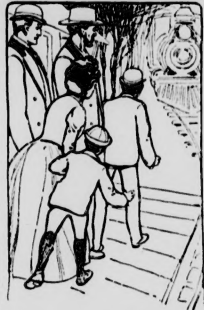

"The Lord has blessed us very much," said Malcolm, looking at Faith tenderly. "I'm afraid your poor old father has had to fight a good many hard battles against selfishness that he hasn't told you, and your mother might tell you how bad I am if she wanted to."

"I don't feel like doing it now," replied Dorothy as her eyes rested on Malcolm's plain, living face, and her love for him was stronger than ever.

"But about my plan, father," said Faith after they had all been silent before the fire. "What do you think of it? Can I do anything that way?"

"It is worth trying," said Malcolm very thoughtfully. "It will take a good deal of wisdom. Do you think you can do it and carry on your art studies too?"

"I don't know," Faith spoke softly. "But now just think of it. Here is the fact. Thousands of men and women all over the world are dependent for their physical and mental and moral comfort upon the kind of service they have in their kitchens and homes. Now, if I am the case, why isn't it possible to 2-ify and elevate such service to a point where a girl who goes out to work may feel that she is doing a really noble thing in helping to keep a whole family in the comfort of body and peace of mind that she is doing a family more happy and more useful in the world? That is the hired girl problem in one sentence. My plan is to start with Christian homes and with Christian girls and get each side to realize what

There were father and mother and the two boys at the station.

I believe a whole lot of people can be formed in such a way that gradually the homes and the girls will be organized into a mutual helpfulness, and it will be more profitable and better financially and morally for a girl to go out to service than to go into a store or an office, and a little back of that, for it really takes more brains to be an efficient cook and housekeeper than to stand behind a counter and sell wares.

Buying an Ancestor.

The famous Quarterly Reviewer, Mr. Abraham Hayward, once thought that he should like to buy an ancestor.

So he walked to Wardour street, where one can generally pick up an ancestor or two of the Cornish period. Selecting a portrait of a cavalier in full armour, with flowing hair and a sword at his side, Hayward made a bid for it, but demanding the price asked too high he went home.

A fortnight after, the ancestral fever coming strongly upon him, he went at last to the dealer's and prepared to pay the dealer his price. The picture was sold. A few days later Mr. Hayward went to dine with Lord Houghton, and was astonished to see the picture in the dining-room. Seeing that it attracted his guest's attention, Lord Houghton said:

"Very good picture that; came into my hands in a curious way; portrait of a Milnes, of the Commonwealth period—an ancestor of mine."

"Indeed?" said Mr. Hayward, "he was very near being an ancestor of mine."

Lightning Only.

Crawford—I say, if you are so smart as when you hear the first roll, at problems tell me how far off there is.

Lightning Calculator—I can't do that. Crawford—you can't? Lightning Calculator—No, I'm the lightning calculator.

High Strung.

"My husband was a very high strung person." "Yes, I've heard he was high on Pike's teak."

Ocean Depths.

The greatest depth of the Atlantic is 25,294 feet; Pacific ocean, 20,600 feet; Indian ocean, 18,262 feet; Arctic ocean, 10,000 feet, and Southern ocean, 25,290 feet.

An Odd Ferryboat.

A ferryboat in use in the harbor of Glasgow is supplied with a deck which can be raised and lowered seventeen feet. In fact, it is a floating elevator. This feature is necessary because of the difference of the levels of the two landing stages made use of by the craft.

Sporting Notes.

The New York Yacht club has 2,300 members.

San Francisco is to have a half mile motorodrome.

The flag bag automobile contest from Denver to the City of Mexico will start from Denver May 1.

Herrington, the South African, and Gervason, of London, the two latest distance runners to turn professional, will meet in a match race in London about Easter time.

Notre Dame college, for the first time in the history of athletics, has two foreign champions a strong bid for positions on the varsity baseball nine. Palermo, a Mexican, and Givanson, a Cuban, are almost finished products of the great American game.

The international chess congress will open at Hamburg on July 10. Dr. Lasker, Dr. Tarrasch, Carl Schlechter, A. Rubenstein, Gena Maroczy, Dr. Janowski and Frank J. Marshall will be invited to play in the grand masters' tourney, and sixteen lesser experts will play in a minor event.

Things Theatrical.

Carlotta Nilsson is to star in "The Conflict."

Douglas Fairbanks is to star in a play by Owen Davis.

Hudson's chambers is to write a musical comedy, called "The Best Girl," which Charles Dillingham is to produce.

It is said "The Virginian" may be revived, with the three Farnum brothers—William, Dustin and Marshall—in the cast.

There are 112 people, comedians and singers, in the cast of "The Silver Star," the great production in which Adeline Genee is dancing this season.

Frederic H. Harris produced Sydney Rosefield's play, "Children of Destiny," in Syracuse, N. Y., recently. Orrin Johnson is playing the leading role.

Progress and Labor.

Automatic machines which clean 3,000 fish an hour are in use in the salmon canneries of the Pacific coast.

The so-called satin finish on the surface of aluminum is produced by rubbing the metal with a steel cloth.

Of the $8,200,000,000 that the farms of the United States have yielded in 1900 the share is $2,400,000,000, and the United States gave employment to 2,400,000 men last year, nearly 10,000 more than the year before.

A dressmaking establishment in Boston almost entirely operated by electricity has an electric cloth capable of cutting out 250 thicknesses of cloth at once.

Electric Sparks.

A complete plant for curing meat by electrical processes has been erected at Cleveland, O.

Japan conducts practically all the wireless telegraphy in the empire through its department of communications.

The wireless apparatus on the Cunard liner Caronia is the most powerful of any in steamship service, having a radius of 1,200 miles.

A new windmill apparatus for generating electricity for farm use has been perfected in England. A storage battery supplies the current when the wind is not blowing.

German Gleanings.

Marriage is now on the decrease in Germany.

In some parts of Berlin there are beer saloons which are patronized exclusively by women.

Fish is now one of the chief means of subsistence of the German people because of its comparative cheapness.

Germany forbids the use of boric acid in curing meats and requires that all meat packed in salt or brine must contain at least 6 per cent salt in its innermost part.

Hypnotic Power.

Biggs—Do you know that the most sensitive cats can be subdued by the human eye?

Boggs—Certainly. Why, I have known fellows who could make dogs follow their staff merely by persistent and emphatic use of the "I."—New York American.

A Misapprehension. "Dear, dear! How did you come to fall in?" asked the old poet.

"I didn't come to fall in," blurted the boy. "I came to fish."

The Editor and Manager of the Burk's Falls "Arrow," is only human. This being so it is not surprising that he should feel and suffer as other men. Mr. Alex. Fawcett says: "I had a very severe attack of La Grippe which left me very weak, listless and run down. I seemed to have lost all ambition. 'At this point I realized that my condition was likely to become more serious unless I took quick action. One day when in this 'half-dead and alive condition' I was listening long over recent files of my paper, 'The Burk's Falls Arrow' (of which I am Editor and Manager), when my eyes rested on an advertisement of PSYCHINE. This clearly and explicitly set forth a case so exactly resembling my own that I at once purchased a bottle of the Medical Hall. After taking two or three doses I felt like a new man, and before half the second bottle had been used every trace of the bad effects of La Grippe had left me. 'PSYCHINE' is as marvellous and I have strongly recommended it to some of my friends a mildly afflicted and they have used it with equally beneficial results."

The Big Tariff Question

The volume of imports from the United States has been very heavy recently owing to the fear of a tariff war. It is probable that the large increase in imports shown in the February return will be augmented during the present month. The commercial interests of Canada have become so used to receiving the harsh treatment from United States legislators that announcements of tariff changes are no longer awaited with the feeling of dread which characterized the country before the passing of the McKinley law, says the Toronto Globe. It is easy to enumerate the branches of industry which would be immediately affected by the application of a maximum tariff, but the most drastic legislation which could be passed would hardly be sufficient to more than momentarily check the present commercial expansion. It is well understood that the injury on the other side of the Atlantic would be much more general and widespread than in Canada.

Canada and the United States have both pursued the policy of admitting free or under a low duty rate the produce which it was desirable should be imported. In both instances these duties were levied not in the interest of the exporting but of the importing country, and the fact that the other would benefit here in part whatever in the fixing of the duty. So far as these duties are concerned neither owes anything to the other. In the second place there are the duties which are purely and simply protective. Here, again, the motive behind these duties was purely selfish. Any trade that the one secured from the other was and is due to purely domestic considerations. Neither owes the other for any advantage or benefit it has received. Bowed down, therefore, the situation is that both countries by their tariffs have made it possible for the one to take from the other the things that it wants and that both have restricted trade in those things which it would rather have produced at home.

An Edmonton Report

Edmonton, March 27.—It is reported here that Mayor Jamieson of Calgary either has been approached by the government or will be approached by the government and asked to take the position of public works. It is known that some members of the government were rather expecting that Mr. Jamieson should be running mate for Mr. Cushing at the next election.

Mr. Jamieson of course would have some difficulty in finding a seat, but politicians here say that if Premier Rathford is in control he will go to the country directly at the conclusion of the investigation, however the result may be. The premier has no idea of the feeling of the country, and is a'solutely out of touch with everything. He still has the idea that he is the supreme potentate and that he would carry the country with a wild rush. He declines to read newspapers and has not been talking even to his supporters. He has an idea that all who are opposed to his reign are included in the list of people voting against him.

Edmonton hotel men say that they have the promise of the Attorney General that the hours of sale will be extended in cities to 11 o'clock. This does not apply to the country as well. They say that this is not an inducement of support in time of trouble, but that the offer was made before the session began.

Hard Luck

A family by the name of Rollier, from Oklahoma, arrived here on Sunday morning last under very distressing circumstances. A little girl had died on the road here and her little twin brother aged seven years was suffering from pneumonia. The little girl was buried from the residence of Mr. J. L. Beane on Sunday afternoon. There is also another boy aged 13 down sick. Some of the family, of whom there are eleven, are staying with Mr. J. L. Beane and some with Mr. Brown in east Didsbury. They are going to stay in town until they can locate on a homestead. They have no relatives in this district.

WOMEN'S BEAUTY

It Can Never Be Perfect Without Luxuriant Hair

A head of luxuriant hair is sure to be attractive. But nature has not crowned every woman with glorious hair. Some very lovely women have been treated rather scantily in this respect.

For instance, there are tens of thousands of women in Canada today who have harsh, faded and listless hair, who are unattractive simply because they do not know that nowadays even the wisest of nature can be overruled by the bias of science.

If you are a woman without beautiful hair, do not let your attractions be hidden because of this slight misfortune.

Go today to Chambers' Drug Store and buy a large bottle of Farnian Sage for 50 cents, use it each night, and you will notice the harsh, repulsive hair disappear, and in its place will come soft, silky, bright and luxuriant hair.

Farnian Sage is guaranteed by H. W. Chambers to cure dandruff, itching of the scalp, and stop falling hair in two weeks or money back.
